

Foxall is a self-described "multimedialist" and multifaceted musician who draws inspiration from the natural world, his Slavic heritage and boundless fascination by the diversity of human cultures. With a deep connection to rhythm and a passion for enchanting audiences, he embraces the role of a modern-day tribal shaman through his musical endeavors.

His work embodies a fusion of diverse musical influences, paying homage to the collective brilliance of generations of musicians across cultures and genres. From fiddlers to divas, singers to composers, Foxall celebrates the universal language of music that transcends boundaries of time, space, and ethnicity.

Foxall came into existence as a duo of Paul Sowa and Marcin Chumowicz in 2017. They embarked on a journey to blend warm, organic sounds with the captivating charm of contemporary dance music. Through their productions and performances, they have graced renowned events such as Wildeburg in the Netherlands, Garbicz in Poland, and Burning Man, carving a niche for their unique musical vision.

In 2024, Paul steps into the spotlight as a solo artist, continuing the legacy of Foxall with a renewed focus and dedication. His solo venture promises to further bridge the gap between traditional and modern musical landscapes, inviting listeners on an immersive journey of rhythm, melody, and cultural exploration.

Foxall has released on labels such as:
